Use of Cookies by KPC Work

Cookies are small text files that are placed on your computer by websites that you visit. They are widely used in order to make websites work, or work more efficiently, as well as to provide information to the owners of the site.

Cookie Control

Most web browsers allow some control of most cookies through the browser settings. To find out more about cookies, including how to see what cookies have been set and how to manage and delete them, visit www.allaboutcookies.org.

The Cookies We Use

Acceptance Cookies

When you accept cookies from our site we write a cookie called `ecd_opt_in` to your machine. This stores your acceptance so that when you return to our site in the future you will not have to accept cookies again. Once you have accepted, our site will save a number of cookies to store information as follows.

System Cookies

A set of system cookies are used to store information allowing functionality. These include data relating to a users membership, such as log-in details, if the user has signed up to any memberships on the site.

Google Analytics

These cookies are used to collect information about how visitors use our site. We use the information to compile reports and to help us improve the site. The cookies collect information in an anonymous form, including the number of visitors to the site, where visitors have come to the site from and the pages they visited. These cookies are listed below:
